Supplementary Materials for

Highly-integrated programs for the prevention of obesity and overweight in children and adolescents: results from a systematic review and meta-analysis

Maria Lucia Specchia, Andrea Barbara, Paolo Campanella, Paolo Parente, Valerio Mogini, Walter Ricciardi and Gianfranco Damiani

Corresponding author: Andrea Barbara, Sezione di Igiene, Istituto di Sanità Pubblica, Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore, Largo Francesco Vito 1, 00168 Rome, Italy. Email: andreabarbara89@hotmail.it.

Published on Ann Ist Super Sanità 2018 Vol. 54, No. 4: 332-339 DOI: 10.4415/ANN_18_04_10

This PDF file includes: Table 1. Main features of selected studies describing the 14 highly-integrated programs included in our analysis.

Table 1

Main features of selected studies describing the 14 highly-integrated programs included in our analysis

| _   |                        |  |                     |                               |   | -                                  |   |
|---|------------------------|--|---------------------|-------------------------------|---|------------------------------------|---|
| Programme   | Studyperiod        | Study model                                | Country(Region) | Age ofparticipants(y) | Objectives  | Outcomes                           | Key findings  |
| FLVS(Fleurbaix–Laventie VilleSante)Romon, 2009  | 1992-2007,12 years | Longitudinalepidemiologicalstudy   | France (Europe)     | 5-12                          | Knowledge-oriented andpractical approaches tonutritionImprove in children'sknowledge of thecharacteristics of foods andnutrientsImprove children's healthyeating habits   | BMI (Body MassIndex)Weight | Between 1992 and2000, there was anincrease in BMI andoverweight prevalenceFrom 2000 to 2004there was a decreasein the prevalence ofoverweight which wasmore pronouncedin girlsBMI decreasedsignificantly from 2002to 2004, for both girlsand boysOnly parental socialclass and height weresignificantly relatedto BMIThe crude overweightprevalence wassignificantly higher inthe Control Town forboth genders. |
| EPODE(EnsemblePrévenonsl'ObésitéDes Enfants,TogetherLet's PreventChildhoodObesity)Borys, 2013 | 2008-2012,4 years  | Cross-sectional,quasi-experimental | France (Europe)     | 0-12                          | Political commitment Secure sufficient resources to fund central support services and evaluation Planning, coordinating and providing the social marketing, communication and support services for community practitioners and leaders Using evidence from a wide variety of sources to inform the delivery of EPODE and to evaluate process, impact and outcomes of the EPODE programme Improve eating habits Improve physical activity habits | BMI                                | The theorybehind EPODEmethodology reflectsthe multifactorialapproach importantin the prevention ofchildhood obesity.Childhood obesitypreventionprogrammes whichaspire to have a widereach, may benefitfrom the insightsinto the EPODEmethodology  |
| VIASANOVinck, 2015  | 3 years2007-2010   | Cross-sectional,quasi-experimental | Belgium (Europe)    | 3-45-6                    | EPODE study methodologyand objectives   | BMIBMIz                        | Decreased prevalenceof overweight andoverweight + obesityin the pilot towns   |

Table 1

(continued)

| Programme   | Studyperiod      | Study model                                       | Country(Region)    | Age ofparticipants(y) | Objectives   | Outcomes   | Key findings   |
|---|----------------------|---|------------------------|-------------------------------|--|--|--|
| POZ (ProgramObesity Zero)Rito, 2013   | 6 months             | Longitudinalquasi-experimental            | Portugal (Europe)      | 6-10                          | Promote healthy eating andphysical activityDecrease high sugar drinksIncrease active play anddecrease television-viewingtime.  | BMIBMI-for-agepercentileWaistcircumference   | Reduction in waistcircumference, meanBMI and BMI-for-agepercentile at 6 months.Higher fiberconsumption and anapparent decreasein sugary soft drinksintake.Improvements inphysical activity levelsand screen time <2h/d |
| ROMP &CHOMPde Silva-Sanigorski,2010de Silva-Sanigorski,2012                                   | 2004-20084 years | Repeat cross-sectional quasi-experimental | Australia(Oceania) | 0-5                           | Promote healthy eating andphysical activityIncrease awareness of thekey messages in homes andearly childhood settingsDecrease high sugardrinks and promote theconsumption of waterand milkDecrease energy snacks andincrease consumption offruit and vegetablesIncreased structured activeplay in kindergarten andday careIncrease home/family-basedactive play and decreasetelevision-viewing time. | WeightBMIBMIzPhysical activitytimeNutritional/healthy eatingindicatorsPrevalence ofoverweight orobese  | Obesity preventioninterventions inchildren's setting canbe effective; effortsmust be directedtoward developingcontext-specificstrategies.  |
| BAEW (BeActive EatWell)de Silva-Sanigorski,2008Johnson, 2012Moodie, 2013Swinburn,2014 | 2003-2006            | Longitudinalquasi-experimental            | Australia(Oceania) | 4-12                          | Reduction of televisionviewing reducedconsumption of sugarsweetened drinks,and increased waterconsumption.Reduce consumption ofenergy dense snacks andincreased consumption offruit and vegetablesIncrease active play afterschool and at weekendsIncreased active transportto schools   | BMIBMIzAmount of hourswatching videos,DVDs or TV.Amount of hoursspent playingelectronic gamesDietary variables | Decreased BMIz in the intervention period.   |

Table 1 (continued)

| INTALEKIALS |  |  |
|--------------------|--|--|
| OFFLEMENIARI       |  |  |

| Programme   | Studyperiod       | Study model  | Country(Region)      | Age ofparticipants(y) | Objectives  | Outcomes  | Key findings  |
|---|-----------------------|--|--------------------------|-------------------------------|---|---|---|
| IYM (It's YourMove)Millar, 2011Millar, 2013   | 3 years               | Quasi-experimental,longitudinalcohort follow-up. | Australia(Oceania)   | 12-18                         | Capacity buildingIncrease awarenessevaluationPromote waterPromote healthy breakfastsincrease fruit and vegetableconsumptionIncrease healthiness ofschool foodPromote active transport to/from schoolIncrease participation inorganized sports | CommunityReadiness ToChange (RTC)Assessment ofQuality of Life(AQoL)Pediatric qualityof life inventory(PEDSQoL)BMIBMIzProportionoverweight/obesity | Increased RTC in theintervention schools.Increase in capacitybuilding outcomesGreater increases incapacity building ledto greater decreasesin prevalence ofoverwight/obesity. |
| APPLE (A PilotProgramme forLifestyle andExercise)Taylor, 2006Taylor, 2007Taylor, 2008 | 2003-2005,2 years | Longitudinalquasi-experimental                       | New Zealand(Oceania) | 5-12                          | Encourage all children tobe a little more physicallyactive every dayIncrease fruit and vegetableconsumptionReduction of television timeShort activity breaks in class   | BMIzBlood pressureTelevision useWaistcircumferencePrevalence ofoverweight orobeseTime spent insedentary, light,moderate andvigorous activity              | Increased participationin physical activitySlowed unhealthyweight gain in primaryschool aged children   |

(continues)

Table 1 (continued)

| Programme                       | Studyperiod       | Study model            | Country(Region) | Age ofparticipants(y) | Objectives  | Outcomes  | Key findings   |
|---------------------------------|-----------------------|------------------------|---------------------|-------------------------------|---|---|--|
| L4L (Living 4                   | 2006-2008,            | Cross sectional        | New Zealand         | 12-18                         | Improve dietary behaviours  | BMI   | No significantdifferences in changesin anthropometry orbehaviors betweenintervention andcomparison schools |
| Life)Utter, 2011            | 2 years               | quasi-experimental | (Oceania)           |                               | related to sugar sweetenedbeverages and breakfastconsumption                              | BMIz  |  |
| 01101,2011                      |                       |                        |                     |                               | Increase physical activity during and after school  | Prevalence ofoverweight andobesity              |  |
|                                 |                       |                        |                     |                               |   | Body fat  |  |
|                                 |                       |                        |                     |                               |   | AQoL  |  |
|                                 |                       |                        |                     |                               |   | Pediatric qualityof life inventory(PedsQoL)     |  |
|                                 |                       |                        |                     |                               |   | Lunch timeactivity                                  |  |
|                                 |                       |                        |                     |                               |   | After schoolactivity                                |  |
|                                 |                       |                        |                     |                               |   | Television use  |  |
|                                 |                       |                        |                     |                               |   | Soft drinkand breakfastconsumption              |  |
|                                 |                       |                        |                     |                               |   | Schoolencouraginghealthy eatingand activity |  |
|                                 |                       |                        |                     |                               |   | Healthiness of school canteen                           |  |
| MYP (Ma'alahiYouth Project) | 2005-2008,3 years | Longitudinalquasi- | Tonga (Oceania)     | 11-19                         | Build the capacity of and to empower community  | BMI   | The intervention reach, frequency and dose   |
| Fotu, 2011                      |                       | experimental           |                     |                               | Empower and strengthen  | Body latness  | activities, showing no consistent patterns.  |
|                                 |                       |                        |                     |                               | the leadership skills around championing healthy  | AQoL-6D   |  |
|                                 |                       |                        |                     |                               | lifestyle strategies.   | PedsQoL   |  |
|                                 |                       |                        |                     |                               | Raise professional, familyand public awareness ofthe obesity epidemic andits effects. |   |  |

Table 1 (continued)

| ()  |                       |  |  |                               |   |   |   |
|---|-----------------------|--|--|-------------------------------|---|---|---|
| Programme   | Studyperiod       | Study model                            | Country(Region)                          | Age ofparticipants(y) | Objectives  | Outcomes  | Key findings  |
| HYHC (HealthyYouth HealthyCommunities)Kremer, 2011                        | 3 years               | Longitudinalquasi-experimental | Fiji (Oceania)                               | 12-18                         | To significantly reduce theproportion of adolescentswho skip breakfast onschool daysTo improve the healthinessof food at schoolTo significantly decreasethe consumption ofenergy-dense snacksand significantly increaseconsumption of fruitTo significantly increase theproportion of adolescentsliving within walkingdistance to school to walkto and from schoolTo support physicaleducation teachersTo significantly increase theamount of active play afterschool and on weekendsTo develop a programmefor promoting healthyeating and physical activitywithin churches, mosquesand temples | BMIBMIzPercentagebody fatAQoLPedsQoL  | The study failedto demonstratethe efficacy of acommunity capacity-building approachamong an adolescentsample  |
| Challenge!Black, 2010   | 2002-2004,2 years | Randomized trial                       | United States(America)                   | 11-16                         | Prevent an increase in BMIcategoryPrevent a decline in physicalactivity (PA) among theheaviest adolescentsEnhance fat free massamong males.Reduce the intake of snacksand desserts  | BMIYoung/Adolescentquestionnaire(YAQ)Play-equivalentphysical activity(PEPA)Bone densityscan (DEXA BodyComposition)  | Program was effectivein preventing anincrease in BMIcategory, in preventinga decline in PAamong the heaviestadolescents, inenhancing fat freemass among males,and in reducing theintake of snacks anddesserts |
| SUS (Shape UpSomerville)Economos,2007Economos,2013Folta, 2013 | 2002-20053 years  | Longitudinalquasi-experimental | Massachusetts,United States(America) | 6-8                           | Increase energyexpenditure.Increase healthiness ofschool food.Nutrition and physicalactivity lesson.Parent outreach andeducation.Local physician and clinicstaff training.  | Body Mass Indexz (BMIz)Sports andphysical activityinvolvementDietary intakeand restrictions.Televisionviewing.Prevalence ofoverweight orobeseRemission rate | Decreased BMIz in theintervention period.Multi-levelcommunity-basedmodel is promising inpreventing childhoodobesity   |

Table 1 (continued)

| Programme                            | Studyperiod                        | Study model                            | Country(Region)                           | Age ofparticipants(y) | Objectives   | Outcomes   | Key findings   |
|--------------------------------------|--|--|---|-------------------------------|--|--|--|
| Let's Go!5-2-1-0Rogers, 2013 | period5 years,2007-2011 | Longitudinalquasi-experimental | (Region)Maine, UnitedStates (America) | participants(y)6-15   | <ul> <li>Encourage healthy choicesfor snacks and celebrations</li> <li>Participate in local, stateor national initiatives thatpromote physical activityand healthy eating</li> <li>Include communityorganizations in wellnesspromotion</li> <li>Involve and educate familiesin initiatives that promotephysical activity and healthyeating</li> <li>Encourage water and lowfat milk instead of sugar-sweetened drinks;</li> <li>Discourage the use of foodas a reward and use physicalactivity as a reward.</li> <li>Incorporate physical activityinto the school day</li> <li>Collaborate with SchoolNutrition Program; and</li> </ul> | BMIBMIzChange in parentawarenessHealthy eatingActive livingChanges topromotesustainability | Findings showimprovements from2007 to 2011A multisettingcommunity-basedintervention with aconsistent messagecan positively impactbehaviors that lead tochildhood obesity |
|                                      |  |  |   |                               | Implement or strengthen a wellness policy.   |  |  |